Tipping for Rigid Clear Printable Films

Tipping and Converting Services Offered for your Print Needs

Printing on clear, transparent film can present substrate detection challenges during press time. With the high volume of print jobs featuring rigid clear films today, a loss in processing time is a loss in profits.

The solution is tipping. By adding a series of discreet glue lines along the longest dimension, we can tip a variety of clear rigid films to a white paper sheet resulting in an interleaved stack of film ready for press work.

The paper also gives an added layer of protection against friction marks and scratching keeping the print medium clean and pristine.

Upon request, we can tip any clear rigid print film we supply, as well as offer tipping and conversion services for third party films already in your stock.

In addition to tipping, we also offer a full range of converting services as shown below.

Looking to cut waste with a custom size sheet? With our decurling lines, we can create the custom size you require, including large format sheets to a maximum width of 51" to any length.

For pricing and available lead times, contact your PVC Tech representative for a tipping or converting quote.
